(RDE)
2018

ABOUT THE "RESEARCH DAYS IN EDUCATION"

Dear colleagues

We have the honour to announce our first educational research meeting, "Research Days in Education" (RDE), to be held at the École Supérieure du Professorat et de l'Éducation (ESPE) (School of Teaching and Education) of the University of French Polynesia (UPF), from Thursday, May 3rd to Friday, May 4th, 2018.

Like the national ESPE network¹ symposium "Le Printemps de la Recherche en ESPE", which is organized annually in Paris, France, the ESPE of French Polynesia is also organizing a conference to invite students, educators and researchers to reflect on important educational issues.

In France, the ESPEs were created in 2013, by replacing the traditional teacher training institutes (IUFM). Today, ESPEs are specific components of French universities, which require completion of a two-year master's degree programme to become primary and secondary school teachers and pedagogical advisers. The creation of the French Polynesian ESPE took place between the years 2014-2016. This new educational structure supports improved conditions for educational dynamism and the development of research activities within the University of French Polynesia.

Jacques VERNAUDON, Université de la Polynésie Française

Following this new change, the research team “Équipe d'Accueil Sociétés Traditionnelles et Contemporaines en Océanie” (EASTCO - EA 4241) incorporated a new research theme called “Transmission” (education and culture in today's Oceanian context), which aimed at bringing together the academics, who were interested in educational research. The researchers working on the ‘transmission’ theme have already initiated several research projects and published their work.

However, The French Polynesian ESPE is a small institution, which has a small teaching force and a few academic scholars who are specialized in research in Educational fields. Moreover, the distance between the French Polynesian University and other national and international educational research centers, makes collaborative research work difficult. It is, therefore, necessary to unite local resource persons and institutions to create the required reflective dynamics.

This first event, “Research Days in Education”, aims to bring together students, researchers and other stakeholders in the Polynesian education system to reflect on current issues regarding education in French Polynesia. This first meeting aims at providing a platform to exchange expertise, discuss and share the results of the research activities that have been carried out in the French Polynesian context.

CONFERENCE THEMES

We invite you to submit proposals for oral presentations, posters, interactive workshops/sessions, and practical demo sessions that address current issues in education through one of the following themes:

- Theme 1: Contextualized instruction, theoretical and practical approaches
- Theme 2: Practices and representations in foreign/second language teaching and multilingualism
- Theme 3: Actual and reported practices, school and family involvement in educational practices
- Theme 4: Innovative pedagogies and new technologies in education
- Theme 5: The first steps in research (research in Master)

Proposals that are not directly linked to the overarching conference themes will also be considered.

CONFERENCE SUBMISSION

The language of the conference is French or English.

Abstracts must be written in Word.doc format and include a detailed summary describing the main points and conclusions of the presentation. Please include the references at the end of your abstract.

Each abstract should contain maximum of 3000 characters (spaces included). Contributions should be interesting, scholarly and academically good quality with clear objectives, method(s), results (where appropriate), and references.

The final versions of the contributions must be submitted electronically and should conform to the deadlines and instructions outlined in the schedule.

Contributions must be sent to jre@espe.pf (cc to rodica.aillincai@upf.pf)

CONFERENCE PROCEEDINGS

All accepted contributions (abstracts, posters, PPT slides) will be published electronically on our webpage.

EDITED BOOK

The selected full papers will be published as chapters in an edited book. The publication is planned for 2019.

REGISTRATIONS

For this first event, all accepted contributions will be free of charge, and the first author will be considered registered. If the second author also wishes to be present, s/he is invited to inform the organizers at jre@espe.pf (cc to rodica.aillincai@upf.pf).

Requests for information should be sent electronically to jre@espe.pf (cc to rodica.aillincai@upf.pf).

Oral presentations

Contributions can be in the form of presentations of research papers, workshops, or practical demos. Each oral contribution will last 30 minutes (15 to 20 minutes for presentation and 10 to 15 minutes for questions and discussions).

Virtual/video presentations

Contributors who cannot attend the RDE, but wish to have their papers to be published in the proceedings book, can participate in a "virtual presentation" (videoconferencing).

All virtual presentations will be projected during the RDE.

Virtual presentation authors can also submit a PowerPoint presentation in addition to the paper submission.

Posters

The posters will be displayed throughout the RDE. Posters must be submitted electronically and should include a detailed summary describing the main points and conclusions (see important dates).
